では、問題を始めます。

Woman☆：

Last weekend, I visited my uncle. He took me to Midori Zoo near his house. First, we saw some birds seen in Japan. I was surprised because there was a big white bird on the water. I said, "I have seen the birds in books and movies, but I didn't think we could see them in Japan." My uncle said, "They fly from other countries in winter." Next, I wanted to see lions, but when we were walking, we found something funny. There was a tiger, but we only saw its head because almost its whole body was in the water. It was relaxing in the water because it was really hot. I thought it looked like a person taking a bath. After that, it started raining. So, we went into a large green building near us. In the building, we saw a big snake. It looked scary, but there was a sign with a cute picture of a cake. It said, "She is the oldest animal here. She will be twenty next week. Please say happy birthday to her." I felt that people at the zoo loved her very much. After a while, it stopped raining. So, we went to the lions. I saw three baby lions and their mother. I said, "Where is the father lion?" My uncle said, "Oh, no. Look here." I looked at the sign and learned that the father lion was sick and we couldn't see him. I was very sad. Before going home, my uncle bought me a notebook with a picture of beautiful birds. By the shop, we found a box to put message cards for animals in. I wrote messages to the big snake and the father lion. I really enjoyed the day. I want to visit the zoo again.
