Woman:     Hi, Ken. What's the matter?

Man:       Look. My umbrella broke this morning.

Woman:     Oh, that's too bad. It's still raining. Do you have another?

Man:       No, I don't. I'll wait here until the rain stops.

Woman:     I hear rain will continue for a few more hours.

Man:       I see. ... What should I do?

Woman:     I'm going home. Would you like to share mine?

Man:       (the sound of bell)

JT 問 2

1 秒

Man: Hello, Jane. Welcome to my house.

Woman: Happy birthday, Hiroto. Thank you for inviting me.

Man: I'm so glad you could come. Let's enjoy the party together.

Woman: Yes, of course. How does it feel to be fifteen years old?

Man: I'm very excited.

Woman: Good. Here's a little something for you.

Man: Oh, thank you very much. May I open it?

Woman: (the sound of bell)

JT 問 3

1 秒

Man: Lisa, you've had nothing yet.

Woman: Umm ... I don't feel like eating.

Man: Why not?

Woman: I feel sick. And I've had a headache since this morning.

Man: You may have a cold. Do you have a fever?

Woman: Yes, probably. When I took my temperature at home, it was a little high.

Man: I think you should go to see the school nurse. Do you need some help?

Woman: (the sound of bell)

JT 問 4

1 秒

Woman: Which club are you in, Makoto?

Man: I'm not in any club. I have a lot of things to do after school.

Woman: What do you usually do after school?

Man: On Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, I take English lessons. On Tuesdays and Thursdays, I take piano lessons.

Woman: Oh, you're busy. How about on weekends?

Man: I'm free on Saturdays, but I usually play tennis on Sundays and enjoy it.

Woman: I like tennis, too. How long have you been playing it?

Man: (the sound of bell)

JT 問 5

1 秒

Woman: Hello?

Man: Hello. This is Taku speaking. May I speak to Brenda?

Woman: It's me. What's up, Taku?

Man: Hi, Brenda. We have the chorus contest next month, right? We practice after school, but I'd like to practice more. When I talked about this with some girls, they liked my idea.

Woman: Good. When are you going to practice?

Man: We're going to practice before school. If you're interested, why don't you join us?

Woman: (the sound of bell)

Jun: Hi Ms. Brown. Do you mind if I interview you for my class project?

Ms. Brown: Not at all Jun. What would you like to ask?

Jun: How long have you been in Japan?

Ms. Brown: Well, it's been over three years now.

Jun: Is there anything about Japan that you find surprising?

Ms. Brown: Surprising? I think I've mostly gotten used to living here now, so there's not much that surprises me anymore.

Jun: How about when you first arrived in Japan? What surprised you then?

Ms. Brown: I guess the trains were a bit of a surprise. I knew that many people took trains in Japan, but I didn't know how crowded they were. On my first morning train, I was pushed into the train by one of the station staff. That doesn't happen back in America.

Jun: Trains in America aren't so crowded?

Ms. Brown: Most people in America get around by car. There are trains all around the country and subways in bigger cities, but they're not so popular.

Jun: I see. Was there anything else that surprised you?

Ms. Brown: Hmmm. I think I was surprised at how much Japanese people like waiting in line. I often see really long lines of people waiting at restaurants, even when there are empty restaurants nearby. When my Japanese friends see a long line of people, they want to join it before they know what the line is for!

Jun: If a restaurant has a long line, it must be a really good restaurant.

Ms. Brown: That's what they said, but I still don't like waiting for a long time before I eat. I think most people in America would give up and look for a different restaurant.

Jun: But you said that you have gotten used to living in Japan now. Do you still not like waiting in line?

Ms. Brown: I still don't like it. Although I did wait in line for quite a long time last week. A new noodle restaurant opened up near my house, and people had been lining up in front of it for days. I wanted to know why it was so popular.

Jun: So you are becoming more Japanese!
